The soldier returned the fire, but falled to nit his man. The negro escaped and a firing squad started in pursuit of him. Earlier in the night the same negro and been seen prowling about the house of E. W. Hocker by Trooper Lowenstein.

The cavalry and infantry were engaged in battle at six separate points with the rioters during the night and early morning. Many negro homes were attacked while the military and rioters in ambush were firing at one another. The shooting began at it o'clock at night, when the military commanders were congratulating themselves that they had restored quiet.

Labor Men to Investigate Important Provisions Gov-Cause of Overcrowding in District Prison.

Emmett L. Adams, president of Federal Lodge of Machinists, and chairman of a committee of five appointed by the estigate conditions at the District jail, ing." He held that this is of the utmost importance to laboring men and to those organizations looking into industrial conditions affecting the wage overcrowding is due to industrial conditions in the Capital?" he asked. "A recent case has been called to my athighly interesting to me. The case in point was that of a man employed by the Government, who in the spring, with hundreds of men idle, was laid off had to appeal for aid, and one of our in five civic aid and betterment secieties sought ductor. to have him arrested and sent to the workhouse for non-support. Here we have the spectacle of a man put out of work by one branch of the Govern-ment being prosecuted by another branch for not working.

Seeks Real Reason.

"I want to know how much of the overcrowding is due to similar circum-stances. I asked the officers of this society why they did not obtain work for him. They were astonished, and for him. They were astonished, and asked where they might find work for him. He had probably been asking himself this question hundreds of times. But I don't believe the fallacy of their work ever occurred to these people."

Mr. Adams advised every member of the Cencral Labor Union to join all the civic societies they could, so as to determine what they were doing to meet the industrial problems of the day.

Sam DeNedrey, secretary of the Central Labor Union decried the unsanitary conditions at the jall, and declared that industrial conditions in the United States were worse today than they have ever been.

States were worse today than they have ever been.

"Ten million men are walking the streets!" he exclaimed, 'and the true conditions are unnoted. Would you believe me, if I told you that children in Chicago are being arrested for stealing from the refuse barrels in the rear of Chicago hotels, and that still others, where whole families are out of work and unable to obtain any, are collecting the refuse from factories and are seizing upon anything else that can be converted into any sort of food."

All these conditions were credited to the industrial situation. Delega'e Clark asked that the com-

No move will be made today against the Hains brithers. Both Captain and T. Jenkins Hains today are in Long Island City jall. They are said to take their arrest very coolly and are confident their story of Annis acts will prove their justification.

In so far as the wife's reference to General Hains is concerned, it is out of keeping with the tribute paid to the aged veteran by officers who know him well here. Judge Advocate General George B. involved in serfous trouble," continued the speaker. "While the War Department will take no official action in the matter, as it is purely a civil case, the fact remains that a number of Captain Hains' friends deplore that he delayed the commission of his act, if commit it he must, until so long after the alleged injury to his fireside. If the unwritten law is to be resorted to, it is generally considered that immediate reparation for the injury should be demanded, instead of reparation after the passion has cooled." Houghton, who, at the inquest, will swear that Annis, with his last gasp, admitted that he was repaid for a wrong done Hains.

"Annis himself knew." said Houghton todry. 'that he was paying with his life for the wrong he had committed. He told things to me which is have as yet told no one. I will tell them to the coroner's jury. I say nothing against Annis. I only say he knew Hains had a grievance. And I will say further that taking into consideration what Annis told me, I hardly think it possible that an officer in the United States army would shoot down a man good cause."

I manded, instead of reparation passion has cooled."

Interest in Wife's Statement.

Considerable interest was manifested here today in the purported interview given by the wife of Captain Hains, in who says that the confession obtained from her as to her alleged intimacy with her husband's victim, was the result of brute force, and that in the presence of General Hains and his two sons. Thornton and Peter, she, made intoxicated, was forced to sign some papers.
